

CRIMINAL JUSTICE

Criminal justice is the most direct way in which our society deals with unacceptable behaviors. At Manchester, you can choose one of three options: 1. Choose the criminal justice major (also excellent prep for law school). 2. Add the criminal justice minor to any other major. 3. Go for a two-year Associate of Arts degree in criminal justice with the option of merging that with a four-year degree. Each option teaches students to write and express themselves well and to think and discuss issues logically.

academics that matter

Manchester students succeed, in part, because they learn to value differences, and they learn valuable communication skills. An alumnus with the Bureau of Alcohol and Firearms returned to campus and told students, "Manchester emphasizes strong oral and writing skills. I'm so glad. We're often in situations where we need to talk in a way that quietly and calmly eases difficult situations."

- Becky Wheaton '07 set up her field placement with her professor to work at Crossroad, a residential program for youth who had emotional problems or had been in trouble with the law.

- Zach Bireley '07 found what it's like on the beat of the Columbia City Police Department. One semester, he worked with detectives investigating a robbery and rape case and watched the interrogation process. On campus, Zach was a baseball standout, HCAC's Most Valuable Player and 2nd Team All American.

SUCCESS

- A week before Jen Bell '04 graduated from MC, she had a job with Vincent House, a transitional housing program in Fort Wayne. Jen's working on her MSW and getting practical experience as a counselor.
- Eddie Miller '04 gained valuable experience his senior year at an innovative juvenile probation department in Kokomo, Ind. He took a position in northern California and now works in child protective services in Arizona.

I FOUND

... A DIFFERENCE

MC helped me find who I wanted to be, what I wanted to become, and helped empower me to believe I could make an impact in others' lives. This place feels like home to me, and it's been wonderful having so many professors that sincerely wanted me to succeed.

Jessica Hicks '07, sociology major
