

GERMAN

If you have taken German classes in high school or have experienced living in a German culture, you may want to spend a semester or year in Germany through our Brethren Colleges Abroad program. Students who have this experience say it's a major highlight of college life and beneficial for any career they might choose.

side by side

- Georgi Chunev '08, from Bulgaria, brought interesting perspectives about cultural differences to the classroom. Drawing on his computer expertise, he helped with technology as the classes visited Germany via the internet or did cultural presentations in PowerPoint.
- Nicole Swoverland '09 managed her biology chemistry course requirements so she could also fit a semester abroad in her schedule.

academics that matter

Consider taking German classes as electives or add a minor to any major you choose. The passion for teaching and dedication to students are common traits among our Manchester faculty. Professors go the extra mile to assist our students, encouraging and challenging them to realize their dreams.

SUCCESS

- Beth Allen '03 majored in history and German and received a Fulbright teaching assistantship in Marburg, Germany. She continues to stay in touch with friends all over the world. Fluently bilingual, when she sings in a choir here or abroad, she gets goose bumps in at least two languages. Beth is currently a professional scorer for Pearson Educational Measurement.
- Sam Cox '07 spent his junior year studying in Marburg, Germany. Seeking ways to keep his newfound love of German alive, he wrote and presented a paper at the Dean's Symposium that took one of the top prizes. Sam was named a Fulbright Scholar and returned to teach a year in Germany.

I FOUND

... A MENTOR

When I delved into German as a sophomore, I wanted very much to study abroad, but was uncertain my skills would be strong enough. My professor immediately assured me that I could realize my dream, and she went out of her way to see that I had a stellar experience. Back at Manchester, with her help, I was awarded a position to teach in Vienna. Later, I won another prestigious award, and as a Fulbright Scholar, returned to Germany for another year. Without my professor's belief in me, I would not have accomplished so much. What a mentor and inspiration she was for me!
